A screenshot of a debugger interface. The top toolbar contains icons for file operations, search, warnings, navigation, and execution. Below the toolbar, a tree view shows a project named "TestingTestsTestsProject" with a sub-item "All Exceptions" highlighted. The main window displays assembly code with line numbers 1 and 2. Line 2 is highlighted in green and contains the instruction "→ 0x109e29d9d". A configuration dialog for an "Exception Breakpoint" is overlaid on the screen. The dialog has a checked checkbox for "Exception Breakpoint". It includes three dropdown menus: "Exception" set to "All", "Break" set to "On Throw", and "Action" set to "Debugger Command". Below these is a text input field containing "po $arg1". At the bottom, there is an "Options" section with an unchecked checkbox for "Automatically continue after evaluating actions". The background shows more assembly code, including line 11 with the instruction "0x109e29db4".
